Join a discussion about the costs and consequences of America’s recent wars with a former U.S. Army Ranger, who walked across the country for a fallen comrade and found his voice as a war resister.

Pat Tillman’s death by friendly fire was covered up just days before his comrade Rory Fanning—who served in the same unit as Tillman—left the Army Rangers as a conscientious objector. Disquieted by his tours in Afghanistan, Fanning sets out to honor Tillman’s legacy by crossing the United States on foot. In this talk and discussion, Rory Fanning will discuss the emotional and social consequences of rejecting the mission of one of the most elite fighting forces in the world, and the continued costs of war and militarization.
